

DO YOU KNOW YOUR BOTTOM LINE?

Finances and bookkeeping may not be the sexy side of farming, but these business skills will make your life easier and your farm more productive.

Join us for a series of mini-workshops on QuickBooks for Farmers, starting on November 6, 12:00 noon – 2:00 p.m. We'll meet two hours each month, November through March. Bring your farm paperwork.

We'll provide a flash drive to save your work, a computer for each participant (15 participants maximum), and a great teacher—San Juan Island accountant and QuickBooks instructor Judy Cumming. Judy will walk participants step by step through the use of QuickBooks for farm business bookkeeping and help you to make business decisions based on the bottom line.

Location: Skagit Valley College, Friday Harbor

Day and time: Friday, November 6, 12:00 noon – 2 p.m. (next session: December 11, same time)

Food: Please eat before or after (no food in the computer room)

Cost: $50 for 5 sessions (registration for all five sessions required)

Information and registration: Please contact Candace at candace_jagel@wsu.edu or 370 7664. Registration is limited to 15 participants, or you may bring your own computer and copy of QuickBooks.
